ANDREA WOO/FOR METRO VANCOUVER

Gregor Robertson wins the Vision Vancouver mayoral nomination yesterday evening at the Croatian Cultural Centre. Robertson, an NDP MLA and co-founder of the Happy Planet juice company, won the nomination on the first ballot over Vision Coun. Raymond Louie and Parks Comm. Al De Genova.

Vision picks Robertson

NDP MLA wins mayoral nomination

By ANDREA WOO
for Metro Vancouver

Vision Vancouver's Gregor Robertson will be the candidate to go head-to-head against the Non-Partisan Association's Peter Ladner in November's civic election.

The entrepreneur and NDP MLA for Vancouver-Fairview took in more than 3,400 of the 6,771 votes during yesterday's mayoral nomination meeting at the Croatian Cultural Centre.

Two-term Vancouver city councillor Raymond Louie came in second, with 2,224 votes and veteran park board commissioner Allan De Genova third, with 981.

To become the nominee, a candidate had to receive more than half of the votes. If this did not happen, a second round would have been required, but due to space limitations, was impossible. Instead, Vision opted for preferential ballots, on which voters marked both their first and second choices.

In a victory speech to a crowd that chanted his name, Robertson, 43, thanked the Vision Vancouver party for remaining united.

"This campaign could have been very, very different," he said. "It could have been divisive, destructive and personal, marked by backstabbing and disloyalty. In other words, it could have been an NPA conference."

The father of four also reiterated his goals to end homelessness within 10 years, increase affordable housing and make Vancouver the "greenest city in the world."

The civic election will take place Nov. 15. On June 8, Peter Ladner narrowly defeated incumbent Mayor Sam Sullivan for the NPA's mayoralty nomination.

COPE councillor David Cadman, who was rumoured to run if De Genova won, was on site yesterday seeming to throw his support behind Robertson.

"We're stronger together than we are divided," he said.

No rush hour can compare to the crowds at the Car-Free Vancouver Day on Commercial Drive yesterday.

People of all ages were drawn to the rows of booths selling local arts and crafts, organic foods and products that promote environmental sustainability, as well as events like a drum circle, a Tribal Harmonix DJ dance stage and spokenword stage.

Motorcyclist dies at scene

By KRISTEN THOMPSON
Metro Vancouver

A man has died of severe head trauma after a car collided with his motorcycle at a busy Surrey intersection.

The accident happened around noon on Saturday at King George Highway and 112th Avenue, shutting down the intersection for five hours.

RCMP Cpl. Stephen Rendall told CBC News that a car turning left onto 112th Avenue from King George Highway turned directly into the path of the motor-

The motorcyclist died at the scene.

Rendall said if the victim had been wearing a bigger helmet it might have reduced the severity of his head injuries.

His identity has not been released.

Court sides with doctors

Judge rules giving babies transfusions was within reason

By ANDREW KING
for Metro Vancouver

A B.C. court has ruled that physicians acted within reason when they infringed upon the rights of two Jehovah's Witness parents by giving blood transfusions to four of their sextuplets born in January 2007.

The parents objected to the transfusions because of religious beliefs that prohibit such treatment.

"Freedom of religion is not absolute," wrote B.C. Supreme Chief Justice Donald Brenner in his reasons for judgment, released Friday.

"While it is difficult to conceive of any limitations on religious beliefs, the same cannot be said of religious practices, notably when they impact on the fundamental rights and freedoms of others."

The lawyer for the parents argued that the transfusions were not necessary, and as a result, the parents' rights had been breached.

» All four of the six babies who survived birth were taken into custody of the province under the Child, Family and Community Service Act to have blood transfusions administered, which their parents opposed on religious grounds.

However, a doctor who testified in favour of the government's case said that the babies' hemoglobin was well below safe levels.

"Given that each of the infants was returned to the care of its parents very shortly after receiving its blood transfusion, it is clear that this proceeding is moot," wrote Brenner.

Ferry service begins today on Coastal Inspiration

By KRISTEN THOMPSON
Metro Vancouver

Sailings on B.C. Ferries' newest ship, the Coastal Inspiration, begin this afternoon between Tsawwassen and Duke Point in Nanaimo, in time for the busy summer season.

The summer schedule starts Thursday, with more sailings on most major routes.

The Coastal Inspiration left Germany, where it was built, on February 9, and travelled through the Panama Canal to Nanaimo, arriving on March 25.

It will make four sailings daily from each terminal beginning at 5:15 a.m. from Duke Point.

Deborah Marshall, spokesperson for B.C. Ferries, said the vessel is the second of three new ferries to join the fleet this year, which is now at 38.

"There's a lot of commercial traffic that travels on the (Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay) route, so that will increase our carrying capacity, so that's great news for trucking passengers," she said.

The Coastal Renaissance began service between Departure Bay and Horseshoe Bay in March.

The third vessel, the Coastal Celebration, is on its way to British Columbia from Germany and will arrive some time this week.

Tories mixing business, fundraising

Ministers attending party events while on taxpayer-funded trips

When Defence Minister Peter MacKay flew to British Columbia in January, he split his time between government business and two Tory fundraising gigs. Taxpayers footed the bill.

When then-Indian affairs minister Jim Prentice flew to Nova Scotia to meet with provincial chiefs, he headlined a Conservative fundraising dinner in Prince Edward Island. Taxpayers paid for the trip.

fundraising success

» In the first quarter of 2008, the Conservative party has raised $5 million — outstripping both the Liberals and NDP with a dollar ratio of about five to one.

And when Fisheries Minister Loyola Hearn jetted off from a Quebec fisheries forum to attend a government meeting in Manitoba, he guest-starred at a local Tory fundraising banquet.

The federal Conservatives — elected on promises to be squeaky clean — are using government resources to help fill their election war chest.

Torstar News Service easily found 25 examples of Tory ministers mixing fundraising and business by comparing government expense records with Conservative party notices of fundraising events. Each trip typically cost taxpayers several thousand dollars, though complete costs are not disclosed.

Ministers maintain key government business was the reason for each journey. None provided proof of this, but some said the political events were just a happy coincidence.

Bush urges Brits to stay in Iraq

Wants closest ally to keep troops until job is done

U.S. President George W. Bush arrived in Britain yesterday for what could be his last official visit as president, urging his close ally not to withdraw forces from Iraq unless conditions on the ground allowed.

In an interview with a British newspaper ahead of his trip, Bush said while the United States and Britain obviously wanted to bring their troops home from Iraq soon, it should be done "based upon success" and not arbitrary timetables.

Underlining the divisiveness of the Iraq issue for Britons, thousands of protesters demonstrated outside parliament in central London, denouncing Bush and the five-year-old war. Several demonstrators were injured in scuffles with police and the authorities said they had arrested 25 people.

Bush, on the final stop of a European farewell tour, said al Qaeda militants had been defeated in Iraq. "They've been — we've routed them in Iraq," he said in an interview with Sky News. "That's not to say that they're not still dangerous or want to come back, but they've been routed."

FIND OUT IF YOU HAVE CANDIDA OVERGROWTH!

Cravings for sweets - even after eating?

Have you taken antibiotics?
Flatulences?
Headaches and mood swings?
Do you use birth control pills?

YES	NO

If you answer yes to 4 out of 6, you may likely have a Candida overgrowth in your intestines. Try dida for 4-6 weeks as a solution.

My stomach is flat again

Cathy Summers was devastated for several years because of her problems with yeast. She felt bloated, had gained weight, craved carbohydrates and her energy levels were lower than ever. It was also putting a real toll on her relationship with her boyfriend Peter.

I WAS DESPERATE

"Nobody seemed to take my condition seriously and no remedy would help me. But through at local health food store I got in contact with a naturopath and he was in no doubt, after hearing my symptoms; I had an imbalance in my intestines between healthy bacteria and yeast cells. He told me how common it is that yeast fungi overgrow in the intestines, but that most people don't know they have the problem. Actually, one in three of his female customers experienced these problems."

I TRIED DIDA

"The naturopath gave me a list of things to avoid, such as white sugar, white flour, candy, processed foods and active yeast (bread). He then put me on two dida tablets a day, for eight weeks and told me to take them with a meal."

NO MORE BLOATING!

"I cannot believe how much my situation has improved since using dida and following the naturopaths recommendations. My stomach is flat again! I am full of energy and my sweet cravings disappeared. It's such a relief to have found a natural solution that works. But best of all - my relationship with Peter is full of life and love again!"

YEAST LOVES SUGAR - BUT HATES CINNAMON!!

Candida fungi can overgrow if you eat a poor diet (refined sugars especially), if you have used antibiotics or birth control pills, or if your immune system is weak (malnutrition, overtraining, bad health in general).

Most people don't even know they suffer from Candida overgrowth, but women recognize it, when they get a yeast infection. The normal medical treatments are lotions or pills. These are effective but don't provide a long-term solution. Furthermore, over 40% of sufferers re-experience Candida problems after using these treatments.

Scientific research shows that especially high concentrations of cinnamon oil, garlic and oregano have a positive influence on the excessive growth of Candida Albicans. Dida™ is based on this research and has been used successfully in Scandinavia for many years.

Kingdom says prices too high meeting

» The Saudi output plan comes a week before the kingdom hosts an unprecedented meeting of producers and consumers to tackle market instability.

The world's top oil exporter Saudi Arabia will boost output next month to the fastest rate in decades to help keep pace with demand and tame what it sees as unacceptably high fuel prices.

Riyadh plans to lift output to 9.7 million barrels per day in July, United Nations chief Ban Ki-moon said yesterday after meeting Saudi Oil Minister Ali al-Naimi.

That would be a rise of 550,000 bpd or over 6 per cent since May and would take Saudi crude output to its highest monthly rate since August 1981.

Saudi King Abdullah told Ban that Riyadh would do its utmost to bring the price down.

Oil fell nearly $2 a barrel on Friday after an industry newsletter reported Riyadh was considering a sizeable output increase to near 10 million bpd.

Lakers prevent Celtics clincher

L.A. avoids repeat of huge Game 4 collapse

LAKERS 103 CELTICS 98

Kobe Bryant scored 25 points and, despite struggling after the first quarter, and with the Lakers squandering leads of 19 and 14 points, Los Angeles stayed alive with a 103-98 win over the Boston Celtics in Game 5 of the NBA Finals last night.

The Lakers overcame a 38-point performance by Boston's Paul Pierce, and trail three games to two in the best-of-seven set.

Lamar Odom scored 20 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, and Pau Gasol had 19 points and 13 boards for the Lakers, who nearly re-enacted their epic collapse in Game 4, when they led by 24 points in the first half only to lose, 97-91, and fall into a 1-3 hole in the series.

Derek Fisher added 15 points for

Los Angeles, which is trying to become the first team to win the NBA Finals after trailing three games to one. Teams trailing 3-1 are 0-28 all-time in the Finals.

Ray Allen scored 16 points on 4-of-13 shooting, and Kevin Garnett had 13 points with a game-high 14 rebounds while struggling with foul trouble.

The Celtics played without starting centre Kendrick Perkins, who sat with a strained left shoulder. Point guard Rajon Rondo was limited to three points in just over 14½ minutes by a bone bruise in his left ankle.

The Celtics will get another chance to lock up the 17th title in franchise in history, and the first since 1986, tomorrow in front of their hometown crowd. Boston is 12-1 thus far in the postseason on its home floor, where they won the first two games of this series.

Boston Celtics star Kevin Garnett has his shot challenged by Lakers centre Pau Gasol last night during Game 5 of the NBA Finals in Los Angeles.

Tiger forces U.S. Open playoff round

Tiger Woods, who has nursed a painful knee all week, rolled in a 15-foot birdie putt at the last hole yesterday to join fellow American Rocco Mediate in an 18-hole playoff today for the 108th U.S. Open.

Heavy favourite to win his 14th major title after going into the final round one stroke in front of the chasing pack, Woods looked skywards and pumped his fists after the putt dropped.

"It was a little wobbly down there," the world No. 1 told reporters of his putt, the first of any distance he made on the day as the greens became bumpier in the late afternoon.

"The putt was probably about two-and-a-half balls outside right and the green wasn't very smooth. I kept telling myself make a pure stroke. I hit it exactly where I wanted to."

Mediate, who won the last of his four PGA Tour titles at the 2002 Greater Greensboro Classic, had led by a shot with one hole to play.

"You can't ever expect him to miss," the 45-year-old world No. 157 said of Woods' last-gasp putt. "I will just have to get ready for a battle royale (today)."

Turkey slips into quarters after colossal comeback

Team battles from two goals down to advance

EURO 2008

Turkey pulled off an extraordinary comeback to book a place in the Euro 2008 quarter-finals with a 3-2 win over the Czech Republic yesterday after trailing by two goals with 15 minutes to go.

Turkey's reward for victory is a last-eight clash with Group B winners Croatia in Vienna on Friday.

The night also featured the farewell of co-hosts Switzerland to the tournament with a 2-0 win over Portugal, who had already sealed their place as Group A winners. It was the final match of the Swiss coach Koebi Kuhn who is now retiring.

The Czechs had looked destined for the last eight after moving into a 2-0 lead with a Jan Koller header and Jaroslav Plasil's neatly taken

Petr Cech inexplicably dropped the ball at the feet of Nihat Kahveci to present the forward with a simple equalizer three minutes from time and two minutes later Nihat blasted home the winner for Turkey.

Turkey keeper Volkan Demirel was then sent off in stoppage time for a shove with the ball out of play but the Czechs did not have time to mount a comeback.

From big oil rigs to university digs

By ANDREW KING
for Metro Vancouver

HOT JOBS

For Tom Kuyser, it took working on rigs in the tough Alberta oil fields and braving extreme weather conditions to motivate him to return to university, but he doesn't regret one minute of it.

In early 2007, Kuyser chose to alter his course and try something new and shock his parents in the process. He was a student at Kwantlen College when he decided that making money was more important than going to school, which led him to Edmonton on a whim to hit the oil rigs to work as a roughneck.

"I went to 15 different companies with resumés and filled out applications," said the former waiter and bartender.

After two weeks of searching for work, Kuyser found himself on a bush plane headed north to his first job in a bush camp an hour outside of Fort McMurray.

"They had me fly in on a little ice runway ... I was freaking out," he said.

He had no idea what he was getting himself into, professing that he "didn't even know what a drilling rig was!"

However, after surviving as the "new guy" and many other names not suitable for print, Kuyser settled in and embraced the opportunity to learn about a life very different from the one he was accustomed to.

"All I knew was it was good money and I was heading out to make that money and a bit of an adventure," he said.

Kuyser spent the next few months with a crew of five travelling throughout Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C. with a rig, going wherever the work was.

Even though he was originally financially motivated to pursue work in the oil fields, Kuyser quickly found out that there was much more to be earned.

"In the end it really wasn't about the money," he said. "It was the biggest learning experience of my life ... it was just incredible."

However, working on the rigs did allow him to save the money he needed to enroll at the University of British Columbia where he is now studying real estate.

"If parents want their kids to go to school, just get them to go to the oil rigs," he said.

Network while you work

By RAFAEL BRUSILOV
for Metro Vancouver

When looking for a job, who you know is often just as important as what you know.

Make no bones about it, networking isn't just a buzzword — it's a crucial way to make sure you know the right people when the time comes to find a job.

Jon Veale, a division director at staffing and consulting firm Robert Half International, says networking — finding, meeting and staying in touch with new people in your field — is one of the most effective ways of finding a job because people tend to prefer candidates who (not surprisingly) they have known can be successful. If they've working with you or heard about your successes, you can have a big advantage when it comes to finding a new job.

Veale says you should be doing some kind of networking on a daily basis — whether it's as involved as attending an industry meeting or as benign as passing along a useful news link over e-mail.

"The important thing is to lay the groundwork when you have a job so that you're not left shorthanded when it comes time to look for a job," Veale said.

Of course, you can't neglect your work or you risk becoming unproductive or, worse, disloyal. The key is not to think of networking as something you do instead of other things, but rather something you remember to do alongside other things.

"It's not so much networking to get something, it's doing something and networking while you're doing it," Veale said.

Make sure to always project your best side in all situations, especially work-related ones, and have something interesting ready to say when someone asks you what you do.

"Have an elevator pitch — how you can present yourself to someone in a minute or less without being too canned or contrived. It should always be organic in delivery but have a few points you want to get to so that people are thinking about you when opportunities arise in the field," Veale said.

Don't bore people with forced details about how great you are, though. Instead, give them the proverbial microphone so you can build a conversational bond.

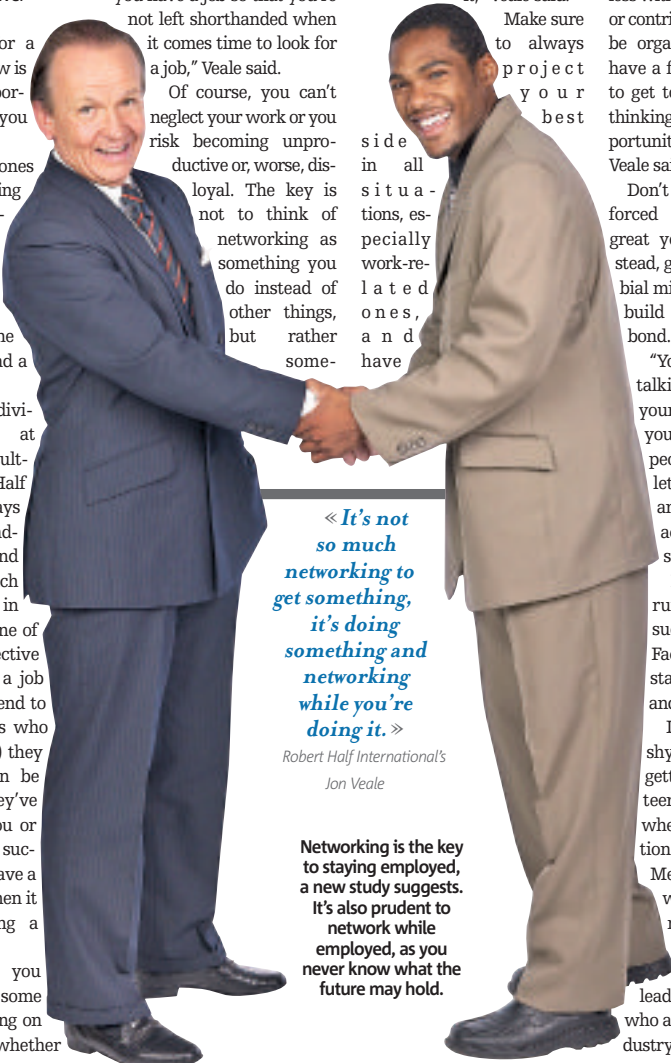

"You never want to be talking too much about yourself. Ensure that you're getting people talking, let them talk and listen actively to their answers," Veale said.

For people on the run, Veale says sites such as LinkedIn and Facebook are helpful to stay connected easily and painlessly.

If you are unnaturally shy, Veale recommends getting out and volunteering for something, whether it has any relation to your job at all.

Meeting and working with new people might make it easier to open up.

"Some of the best leads come from people who are outside of your industry area," he said.

«It's not so much networking to get something, it's doing something and networking while you're doing it.»

Robert Half International's

Jon Veale

Networking is the key to staying employed, a new study suggests. It's also prudent to network while employed, as you never know what the future may hold.

» Office Yoga

By HEATHER DeLONG

This Week's Pose: Gentle Neck Stretches

» Five minutes of daily office yoga can help relieve physical tension, reduce mental stress and increase awareness of your posture at work.

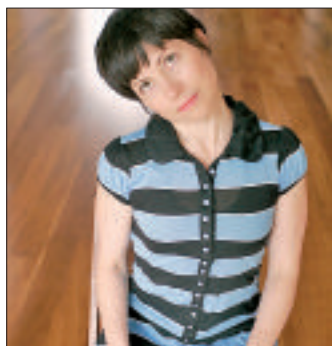

» This neck stretch will release tension in your neck and shoulders and help you improve your sitting habits in front of your desk. Breathe deeply in each position to get the most out of this asana.

» Remember that every aspect of the pose should feel comfortable and you should never feel any pain when doing yoga.

Step 1: Sit with your feet hip-width apart with your spine straight and your hands resting on your lap. Allow your head to be centred with your chin tucked in slightly to elongate your neck.

Step 2: Contract your abdominal muscles, take a deep inhale. As you exhale, gently release your right ear towards your right shoulder. Relax your shoulders down your back and relax your facial muscles completely. Breathe deeply for several moments here.

Step 3: Contract your abdominals and as you inhale gently return your head to centre. Repeat Step 2 on the left side.

Coming out of the pose: Contract your abdominal muscles and gently open your elbows out to the sides again. As you inhale, very gently press your head into your hands and bring your head to center. Take a few breaths here.

Step 4: Contract your abdominal muscles and as you exhale release your chin into your chest. Interlace your hands on the round part of your head — not your neck — and very gently hug your elbows to your ears. Without pulling, simply allow the weight your arms to lengthen and release your neck deeper. Stay here and breathe for a several moments.

Women with children working longer: Study

Women with children are working more than ever before despite the so-called "opting out" revolution popularized by the media, according to a new study.

Using data from the U.S. Census and the American Community Survey, Christine Percheski, of Princeton University, found that the number of full-time working mothers born between 1966 and 1975 has risen to 38 per cent, up from 5.6 per cent among women born between 1926 and 1935.

"What's happening is that professional women's employment rates are continuing to creep up every year, and even women with young children are increasing their employment," Percheski said in an interview.

Less than 8 per cent of professional women born after 1956 have left the workforce for more than a year during their prime childbearing years, according to the finding published in the American Sociological Review.

The notion that women are choosing to "opt out" of their fast-paced professional careers in favour of staying home to raise children has been vastly overblown by the media, Percheski said.

What's more, factors such as longer working hours and societal pressure to stay home to be with the children has created a false perception among the public that women are being forced out of the workplace.

"In fact, women are feeling less pressure to stay at home, and public acceptance towards employment of mothers — even women with young children — is increasing," she added.

But combining a professional career and motherhood doesn't come without sacrifices, Percheski found.

"What's amazing is that women who chose to work are not spending less time with their children, but they're decreasing the time they spend sleeping, the time they spend on leisure activities, and the time they spend in civic participation," Percheski explained.

"So yes, they're successfully combining motherhood and employment but it comes at a cost," she said.

YWCA honours Deepa Mehta

Awards recognize Canadian women of distinction

By RAFAEL BRUSLOW
for Metro Vancouver

Courage, dedication and the drive to make the lives of women around the world better — all are qualities possessed and demonstrated by filmmaker Deepa Mehta and seven other Canadian Women of Distinction.

The world-renowned filmmaker, famous for her soul-wrenching films documenting oppression of women and political turmoil in her native land of India, was the recipient of the recent President's Award at the 28th annual YWCA Women of Distinction Awards in Toronto.

Draped in an elegant, traditional gown that billowed playfully, Mehta called the award "a great honour" and praised the city that has become her adopted home for the past 30 years.

"I've spent half my life in Toronto — I feel that it is my city," Mehta said.

Mehta said what drives her is to help women understand they don't have to be powerless in their own lives.

"What's important for me is for women to realize they have a voice — for all women to realize they have validity," Mehta said.

Also honoured at the ceremony were seven other outstanding Canadian women, including journalist and documentary filmmaker Sharmeen Obaid-Chinoy, who received the Communications Award for her courage in bringing to light social oppression around the world. She cited Mehta as an influence on her own work.

"Deepa Mehta is someone I look up to. She's paved the way for filmmakers of my generation to break boundaries, to speak to things and bring out work that poses big questions that other people would like to see forgotten," Obaid-Chinoy said.

Amanda Dale, a director at the YWCA, called all eight award recipients tireless pillars of the community.

"It's an award that recognizes the accomplishments of women who are outstanding in their field and who, more importantly, make a great difference in the lives of women and girls everywhere. These women have all achieved a sense of community and a sense of belonging that inspire other women," Dale said.

Other honourees included 24-year-old Ayan Hersi for her work in conducting research and spreading awareness about AIDS in Africa and Fran Odette for championing the rights of deaf women and women with disabilities.

Obaid-Chinoy says the award strengthens her resolve to continue working to uncover the truth of human circumstances.

"The truth is important because we really need to stop believing that the outside world doesn't matter. What happens in one part of the world will affect other parts," Obaid-Chinoy said.

Jackson mulls Vegas move

Michael Jackson may relaunch his career as a Las Vegas act, thanks to the private equity group that recently bought the loan on his Neverland Ranch in California to help the pop star avert foreclosure.

The investment firm Colony Capital is discussing with Jackson various repayment options for the US $23 million debt, including a possible engagement as the resident performer of a Vegas casino or nightclub, a source familiar with the talks said Friday. Colony Capital owns the Las Vegas Hilton and is a major shareholder in the Station Casinos chain.

The source emphasized that no deal was in place and that a gig for Jackson in Las Vegas was merely one idea under consideration. REUTERS

Mood-altering colours

Did you know that paint choices can have a serious impact on mood? Well, if colour psychologists are to be believed, choosing the right tone will help you balance emotions and lead a fuller life.

BLUE: Blue aids relaxation and promotes a calm, spiritual feel. Use it in bedrooms to soothe, in kids' rooms to focus the mind and in bathrooms to promote a feeling of well being. It's also considered an appetite suppressant — maybe it could be the perfect choice in the kitchen if you're counting calories!

RED: If a rise in sexual response is what you're after then make red your colour of choice. But be careful — a little goes a long way. Use it as an accent rather than your dominant colour. Deep reds promote appetite and conversation, making them great for dining rooms, whereas orange-red and brown-red shades are cozy and stimulating.

YELLOW: The colour of sun, yellow will make you happy and has been shown to increase metabolism.

But it's also been noted that people lose their tempers and babies cry more often in yellow rooms. So perhaps it's not ideal (in brighter tones anyway) in a nursery! Great for kitchens and bathrooms, especially teamed with white.

GREEN: The colour of the forest, green calms, relaxes and has a healing effect. What's more, it's said to relieve depression and anxiety. But remember — don't use too dark a tone, or your home will end up feeling like the local library. Sage, olive and lime are currently very popular and even pastels are making a comeback.

PURPLE: Signifying opulence and spirituality, purple is seriously hedonistic. From sexy aubergine to soft lavender, and mauve to sophisticated lilac, there's a tone for everyone. Team with white, grey and silver, add a feature wall of dramatic lavender wallpaper or dot your home with deep purple cushions and throws as an introduction to this regal tone.

GREYS/BLACK: Storm clouds and rainy days — the perfect choice for grumpy teenagers? Or a mood board inspired by city suits, military precision and the little black dress? We love this palette and find it timeless, elegant and sophisticated. But better still — monochrome is reckoned to increase productivity in the home office.

PINK: Colour scientists often advocate pink for use in prisons (to subdue aggressive behaviour) so it's sure to bring harmony to your home. But go easy, or risk a Dolly Parton-inspired marshmallow nightmare.

Swingtown debut

TALES FROM THE DOUBLEKNIT WASTELAND:

Almost two weeks ago, CBS' new summer drama Swingtown debuted to great numbers — 8.6 million viewers, according to the Hollywood Reporter, even though the stiffest competition it was up against that night, in the bleary aftermath of an especially unimpressive primetime season, was a horror anthology on NBC.

Even debuting a sexy drama about spouse-swapping suburbanites in the summer of the U.S. Bicentennial in the first flush of summer has an indelibly '70s feel about it, and I was there, baby, a TV junkie in my early teens, glued to the half-dozen channels our backyard antenna pulled in for some clues to the increasingly confusing world around me. There are a lot of things Swingtown gets right, and a lot it gets wrong, but it's already working with a handicap as the near-definitive retrospective take on the decade has already been made — Ang Lee's 1997 movie version of Rick Moody's novel The Ice Storm.

IDIOT BOX

There's a distinct network cheesiness to Swingtown that actually gives it a rather mind-blowing approximation of what Moody's novel might have been like if it were a '70s TV series and not a book. Thirty years ago, CBS would have been obliged to be a lot more moralistic in its treatment of the Millers, Bruce and Susan, who haul themselves a couple of notches up the middle-class ladder and find themselves in the well-upholstered lap of the sexual revolution, courtesy of their sexy new neighbours, Tom and Trina Decker.

Today, however, CBS is playing catch-up with the Joneses — Showcase, FX, HBO and AMC, with their critically-acclaimed hour-long dramas, and they're determined to get a piece of that audience. They've come out swinging — pun intended — but there are a lot of wrong notes. Everything moves too fast, for one — episode one ends with the Millers already trailing the Deckers into the bedroom at their 4th of July party. The pacing feels a bit frog-marched, and some of the characterizations — especially Miriam Shor as Janet Thompson, Susan's uptight soon-to-be-former-best friend — far too tidy.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera.

Bones
This episode is proof that you can't judge a book by its cover. When a minivan explosion at a highway rest stop leaves its driver dead, Booth and Brennan (David Boreanaz, Emily Deschanel) discover the victim had a secret past; she was a member of a violent student radical group in the 1970s and is still wanted in connection with a policeman's murder. That's a big clue, but finding the killer will be tricky in "The Soccer Mom in the Mini-Van." 8 PM on GTV FOX

CSI: Miami
The victim was scalped, so American Indians must be involved? Come on, Horatio; that sort of stereotyping is beneath you. Even Jerry Seinfeld had the sense to avoid using "scalper" around his Indian date — and he was talking about ticket sellers. Nevertheless, Horatio (David Caruso) suspects a link to an Indian casino when a murder victim is found with a little too much taken off the top. Ed Begley Jr. guest stars in "Bloodline." 10 PM on CBS CTV

Together again

According to Tommy Lee, he and ex Pamela Anderson are giving it another go. "Pamela and the kids have moved in with me," he told Rolling Stone. "We've only given it a try 800 times — 801, here we go." And how do their two sons, Brandon and Dylan, feel about having mom and dad back together? "You can tell on the kids' faces — they're happy when we're together."

Bulletproof Cruise-ing

Tom Cruise's most important mission is keeping his family safe. According to intouchweekly.com, the 45-year-old superstar has a fleet of expensive cars and all of them are equipped with bulletproof windows. "It sounds like he's taken a page out of one of his action movies," explains an insider. "Tom's vehicles look perfectly normal, but in reality they are more like armored trucks." All of Tom's chauffeurs are professionally trained drivers, says the insider, so they can get him out of traffic problems and protect him from possible trouble. Still, he often prefers to drive his wife, Katie Holmes, and his three children himself. "Tom is a car nut," the insider adds.

The Keys to motherhood?

Alicia Keys wants to adopt. According to femalefirst.co.uk, the singer admires Angelina Jolie for adopting son Maddox from Cambodia, Zahara from Ethiopia and Pax from Vietnam and is considering following in her footsteps.

Keys, 27, said: "I think adoption is important to consider. That is what I really admire about Angelina Jolie. I think it's beautiful the way she embraces the children of the world."

"We are all one. We're not as separate as we sometimes think. So I possibly would adopt, when I'm more in the motherhood stage of my life."

Alicia also says she has always loved spending time with children and believes it is important to encourage their ideas and creative sides.

She added: "I've always loved kids. Kids are so important. It's important to nurture and spend time with them and listen to them."

Rep denies Connery is in hospital

A representative for former James Bond star Sir Sean Connery has denied the actor is in hospital nursing a fractured ankle — revealing the star is only suffering from a minor shoulder injury.

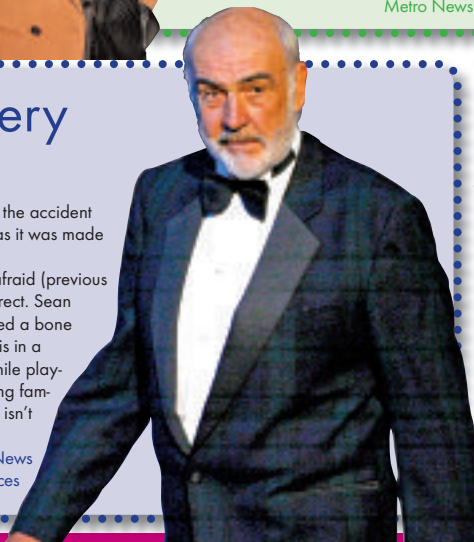

The 77-year-old reportedly fell and injured himself during a game of golf in Mount Kisco, New York on Friday and was subsequently admitted to Northern Westchester Hospital for treatment.

But Connery's spokeswoman

Nancy Seltzer says the accident was not as serious as it was made out to be.

She said: "I'm afraid (previous reports are) not correct. Sean Connery has chipped a bone in his shoulder and is in a sling. He tripped while playing golf and is visiting family in New York. He isn't in hospital."

HOROSCOPE

ARIES | March 21-April 20

Be responsible when more work comes in. An intruder's disgraceful conduct is embarrassing. Corniness shows an emotional bond.

TAURUS | April 21-May 21

A love affair moves onto daring ground. Take advantage of available low rates. Compromising with a vendor can't succeed.

GEMINI | May 22-June 21

Give back that which doesn't belong to you. You can calm a situation by asking for help. A reluctance to commit is very evident.

CANCER | June 22-July 22

Wait for a loved one to make the first move. Fatigue puts evening plans on the skids. Have patience with newlyweds.

LEO | July 23-Aug. 23

Matters will come to a head in a drama. Apologize for taking someone for granted. Be gracious when you're complimented.

VIRGO | Aug. 24-Sept. 22

A woman is making mountains out of molehills. You'll sleep better with a clear conscience. Luxuries will have more appeal.

LIBRA | Sep. 23-Oct. 23

Make your wishes known to all. There is a powerful person behind the scenes. Those who know your work will offer compliments.

SCORPIO | Oct. 24-Nov. 22

Domestic battles result in power struggles. You are the focus of every encounter. A romantic life is confounded by sentimentality.

SAGITTARIUS | Nov. 23-Dec. 21

Everything you need will be available. A bully takes a welcome break. A stress related headache will fade away.

CAPRICORN | Dec. 22-Jan. 20

Nervousness is expressed by a powerful man. Objectivity develops after an intense debate. Don't disappoint anyone with bad behaviour.

AQUARIUS | Jan. 21-Feb. 18

A despondent person admires your nerve. Your enthusiasm will conquer all resistance. A phony braggart should be avoided.

PISCES | Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Tactless comments will work to your advantage. Delay things if you're reluctant to make promises.
